THE NEW FAIR GROUNDS. In the evening I rode out with Capt. B. T. Fulghum, Editor of the State Agricultural Journal, and Secretary of the North Carolina Agricultural So ciety, to inspect the new Fair Grounds which are situated literally on " high ground," about a mile and a quarter west of Raleigh, on the old Chapel Hill road. The site is higher than any point in that vicinity, and indeed is said to be higher than the dome of the Capitol, giving assurance at all times of pure fresh air and commanding views of the surrounding country. The enclosure consists of fifty-five
